A MODERN PROBLEM.

She—You have never met father and mother, have you?
"Not formally, but we have just passed one of them, I think."
"Which one?"
"I don't know."

A Difficult Question.

"Now," said the prudent man, "you have drawn up my will to the best of your ability?"
"Yes, sir," replied the lawyer. "I've done it just as carefully as I know how."
"And it's properly signed and witnessed and all that?"
"Everything is quite regular."
"Well, there is just one more thing I wish you'd do for me. It's largely a matter of curiosity."
"What is it?"
"I wish you'd tell me who, in your opinion, is most likely to get the money when the lawsuit is over."

Mrs. Ethel Fraser of Odessa spent a few days last week with Miss Maud Amey.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lee of Kingston, spent Sunday, in our village.

Mrs. Amelia Miller has returned home after a two months visit with friends at Grimsby and Toronto.

PINE GROVE.

Mr. Editor, where is our reporter gone? We are not dead nor yet sleeping—twixt farmers, gardeners, brick and tile makers, undertakers and all sorts of trades, we are a busy lot and bear no mark of collapsing yet.

The farmers are busy gathering in the sheaves. Everything is very good except hay which yielded about two tons to three acres. There is a splendid showing for fall feed and roots. Apples are plentiful.

Chas Hamby has purchased a mate for his fox colt. They make a pretty team. A school site has been purchased from A. Cummings—price $75.

One of our young ladies is negotiating for the purchase of a bicycle. Young man, get one too or she will pass you with a swish and soon be out of sight.

Rube Herrington has got a new self binder said to tie a knot faster than a preacher.

Geo Hamby has built an addition to his drivehouse.

The old pacer travels down to Napanee every evening regularly. There are seven roads from there. I guess he paced them all. Changes are lightome eh! old boy.

Visitors and callers—Mrs. R. Johnson and daughters Eda, Ida and Etta, at Reuben Herrington's; Benson McCabe, Jno Doyle, of Ernestown, Miss Robinson, of Napanee, Ida and Edith Johnson, Ida and Ella Richardson, at Hugh Lowry's; Wm. Baird, jr., at Jas. Wagar's; Mr. and Mrs. Sexsmith, of Verona, at Mr. Amey's; Mrs. Thos. Gibson at Nelson Sill's; Mr. Corn wall, of Roblin, at Will Herrington's; Clarence Wagar at home; Mr. Davy, of the Mills, at Geo. Hamby's; Chas. Dunwoodie at A. Cummings; Mrs. Huffman is visiting friends here.

Archie Amey and J. Woodcock, and Misses Ella and Ida Richardson attended service at Hudson Park on Sunday.

YAKKER.

Camp life at Sydenham lake has been well represented by Yakerites. Those having tents were J. Ewart, F. J. Atkins, F. E. Benjamin, C. Wartman and Rev. Mr. McDiarmid. Many of our people would go over and spend a day or so with them, so that a very merry two weeks was spent.

The changes about the station here will be completed, when the delay of trains here will be shortened. A ladies' waiting room has been added to the station.

Simon Babcock is now located in his new barber shop, under the C. P. R. ticket office. It is a beauty being fitted up with a handsome bathroom with hot and cold water attachments, and altogether is as well equipped as any city barber shop.

her father's, John Parrott; Miss Kate Henzy, Kingston, at James Dawson's; Mrs. Robert Baker, son Herbert and daughter, Syracuse, at Ira Smith's; Mr. Boyle and sister, Railton; at A. Kenyon's; Clara Watts, Syracuse, at B. Derbyshire's; Mr. Makin and Miss Hawkey, Sunbury, and Miss Baker and Miss Jennie Baker, Deseronto, at Mrs. W. A. Baker's; Mrs. E. Deroche and two daughters, at George Watts'.

John Storms has returned to town after rustivating a few weeks among the Thousand Islands. John is very uneasy since the elections. He now wears McKinley on his vest.

R. Cairns has been sick for the last few days and is still in bed. C. Watts and W. Jones were also on the sick list last week, but are around again.

C. G. Booth is improving the front of Ernestown medical hall, pointing and painting it.

FACTORY ROAD.

We have just had a nice shower to freshen us up, and make everything look like growing again.

Farmers are very busy at their harvest. There is a very good crop of oats and barley, in this neighborhood.

About a week ago a big brown horse owned by Mr. Elgin Benn, strayed from his pasture field. Mr. Benn has searched and made great enquiries of his whereabouts but cannot find or hear tell of him.

Mr. Fred Wood continues very low.

TAMWORTH.

We have to chronicle the sudden death of another old resident, Mr. Woods, father of our deputy-revee, Geo. Woods, and S. Woods, manufacturer of cheese boxes, etc., of this place. He died Monday morning and was buried Tuesday at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church.

Mrs. Christopher Gouace passed away after a lingering illness of consumption. The funeral took place at the Methodist church at 2 o'clock Wednesday. Rev. Rice, of Enterprise, conducted the funeral.

The heat on Wednesday was fearful, and at five o'clock a wind storm passed over this place. No harm done. Last night we had an electric storm. The heavens were lit all night. Not much rain fell.

Our hotel keeper, Sampson Shields, is erecting sheds for public use.

BATH.

Harvest time has arrived and truly the crops in this locality are the best in some years.

The new house of Mr. Abraham Irish is fast nearing completion and when finished will be a credit to the workmen.

Mr. Walter Prowly was at home to a number of his friends on Friday evening last. They all report having had a most enjoyable time.

Miss Annie Booth, of Boston, is the guest of Miss A. G. Hogle this week.

Mr. Overton Ball, who for the past two years has been running a bakery in Moore-

Mrs. Catharine Gould, of Kingston, formerly of Londale, and Miss Elizabeth Switzer, of Switzer, have been visiting at Mrs. P. Gould's, Centre street.

Mr. Thos. Cairns, Postmaster of Perth, who is visiting Mrs. Thos. Jamieson this week is an old newspaper man. He edited the Pictou Gazette as far back as 1860. Mr. Cairns was over to Pictou on Wednesday but found that all his old associates and friends of former years had either shuffled off this mortal coil, or like himself had moved to jousts new.

Mr. T. G. Davis is laid up this week with a sore leg the result of an accident.

Miss Ethel Radford, of Montreal, arrived in Napanee on Wednesday evening on a visit to her brother Mr. F. M. L. Radford. Miss Radford will be the guest of Mrs. John Stevenson while in town.

JOY & PERRY.

Several cases of eggs were exposed on South Water street Tuesday morning. By noon they were all hard boiled.

One of Napoleon's Grand Army.

We were in error, it seems, when we spoke a short time since of Joseph Rose as the sole survivor of the "grand armee." Out of the 44,000 grizzled warriors who claimed in 1869 the St. Helena medal as having served under "Le Petit Caporal," there still remains one to answer to the muster call. Victor Bailford of Percy, in the Yonne, is a year senior to his departed comrade, having been born on April 9, 1793. He joined the ranks in 1812 at Colmar, and formed part of the 105th Foot under Davoust, with whom he went through the siege of Hamburg. Bailford was without doubt a Waterloo hero, and he has good reason to remember that eventful day, for he fell under the charge of the British cavalry, got a saber cut across the skull, which would probably have cut short his career but for his huge shako, and was carried off to England as a prisoner of war. His name found a place among the list of dead, but a year later he returned to the bosom of his family, and a medical board gave him his discharge on the ground that he was in the last stages of consumption. Since that date he has lingered on through eighty summers, and hopes to see the century before he bids farewell to the world.—London Chronicle.

WILTON.

Quarterly meeting was held in the Methodist church Sunday morning and there was no Presbyterian service in the evening as communion was dispensed at Harrowsmith in the afternoon.

Miss Emily Simmons is on the sick list.

Miss Mabel Emerson is visiting friends in Kingston.

Miss Stella Neilson left Tuesday evening for a few day's visit with friends in Violet.

Mr. H. L. Thompson, New York, is the guest of his parents.

H. Mills has purchased a new cleaner for his thrasher and expects to start work in a few days.

Visitors:—Miss Edna Guess, Murvale, at B. Shibley's; Miss T. Dixon, Camden East, at James Davy's; Misses Mabel Car-scallen, Tamworth, and Minnie Gallagher, Pittsburgh, at H. Mills'; Mrs. F. C. McGuin and daughter, Napanee, and Mrs. J. C. Perry and children, Philadelphia at W. H. Neilson's; Miss Edna Storms, Violet, at Mrs. Emerson's.

SALEM.

Owing to my being busy in the harvest field last week, I was unable to write you any items, but will try to pay up this time.

Wm. Young and wife, of Forests Mills, also Mr. George Baldwin, of Marlbank, took dinner with L. McCabe on Saturday last.

Miss Grasswell returned on Saturday last after spending a month with friends in Mattawa.

Joe Sedore and daughter, Cassie drove to Westplain on Monday, and Miss Sedore is spending this week with friends there.

Several from here attended the W. M. S. S. excursion to Twelve O'clock Point on Tuesday last.

R. J. McDowell, of Kingston, spent part of Tuesday with Delbert Cassidy.

John Doyle, of Bath, spent Sunday night in Salem.

Mrs. P. M. McCabe has returned home after a visit with friends in Rochester, N.Y.

Our sick list this week is Mrs. Kent and Mrs. Charles Lowry.

On Wednesday, Aug 5th, the grim face of death showed itself in the household of Daniel McCumber, taking from its mother's embrace her infant son. The bereaved mother, Mrs. Albert Brickman, (see Lillie McCumber) has our sympathy.

KINGSFORD.

Mrs. Isabella Frizzell is spending the summer in Watertown, N.Y., with her son Fred.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos Winter spent Thursday the guest of Mr. J. Richmond, on 7th concession.

Mr. McCormick, Forest Mills, is, we are sorry to say, very ill at present. We hope for a speedy recovery.

John Doyle, of Ernestown, spent part of Saturday with his parents here.

John English, lawyer of Napanee, passed through this vicinity on Tuesday evening on a business trip.

Several attended court on Tuesday last. Thomas Winter has given his house a liberal coat of paint this week.

Herb Sexsmith, of the 5th concession, has gone to Watertown, N.Y., for a few months. No doubt she will be lonesome.

Miss Kenny is spending a few days with Mary Doyle.

Miss Howes returned to her home in Napanee after rusticating in the country for a week.

Mrs. John McCullough, of Belleville, is spending this week on the old homestead, Londale road.

Mrs. James Schermerhorn and daughter Grace, of 5th concession, spent Tuesday the guest of Mrs. Albert Bowen.

James Hewitt and wife, of the 4th con., spent Sunday with Mrs. John Turnbull, of Leinster.

Messrs. Archie and John McNeil, of Camden, were the guest of Charles McNeil on Sunday.

The marriage of Miss Emma Brown to Mr. William English, both of the township of Richmond, was solemnized on July 20. Their wedding took place on their birth days, both being the same age to an hour.

Ruth, the seven months old daughter of Mrs. Stuart, of Watertown, who is visiting at Mr. Jas. Birrell's, died on Wednesday evening. Mr. Stuart was telegraphed for and arrived last night.

attachments, and altogether is as well equipped as any city barber shop.

The grain crop will be abundant, barley already threshed has yielded well. Hay is light.

The Free Methodist tabernacle tent will be raised here, and religious services held for a few weeks.

E. W. Benjamin's new factory is now ready for the machinery. E. W. is now in the States looking up the latest improved machinery for his factory here.

Gertie Connolly, Mabel Montgomery and Jessie Winters passed the entrance at Newburgh.

A cement floor is being put in the coal shed.

Prof. Johnston is on the sick list.

William Hill left here for Rochester, N. Y.

A son of Dennis Smith was knocked down by a heifer, but the timely arrival of the mother saved him from being gored.

J. H. West and wife are at Winchester Springs.

Mike Manion is home from Buffalo, N.Y.

Mrs. Starr Amey, of Chicago, spent a few days here, the guest of Mrs. J. Janice.

Amelia Winter and Maggie Smith, Watertown, N.Y., are at S. Winter's.

J. Snider and wife are home from Syracuse.

ODESSA.

After an illness of a couple of weeks Mrs. Benjamin Davy passed away on Tuesday of last week. She was the second wife of Mr. Davy and had been married only since November last, and had moved from Link's Mills to this place. Mrs. Davy's maiden name was Alice Lockwood, and she had lived for many years in the family of Frank Amey. She was a consistent member of the Methodist church and was an interested member of one of the home department classes in connection with the Sabbath school here.

She was a very industrious woman and a devoted wife, and had the respect of all who knew her. Mr. Davy has a family of six who found in their step-mother a real mother and they have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement. The funeral conducted by Rev. Mr. Secombe, occurred on Thursday to the Union church at which deceased had worshipped for many years. The coffin was covered with flowers, the gifts of friends, the home department of the Sabbath school sending a beautiful wreath and a star made by Mrs. A. Storms.

A second funeral occurred in the village on Sunday afternoon last. Mrs. Burtram, who had died in Kingston, was brought to the house of her father, John Babcock, from which Rev. Mr. Dibb conducted the funeral services to St. Alban's church. The church was filled with mourners and friends. The sermon was preached from Hebrew xi, 39-40. The remains were interred at Wilton.

The quarterly services at the Methodist church here were largely attended on Sunday last. Dr. Metzler will occupy the pulpit of this church on Sabbath morning next.

Charles Scott and Henry Asselstine were unfortunate last week in each losing a horse. Mr. Scott's became entangled in a tie rope and had a leg broken, and Mr. Asselstine's was impaled in jumping over a fence.

The telegraph poles on the south side of the York Road are being removed. They can be made very useful to be manufactured into rails or posts and L. J. Day, of Cataragui, is now removing the line from Odessa to Cataragui having bought the lot.

Mrs. John Schermerhorn entertained a few of the young people one night last week in honor of her sister, Miss Madden.

Miss Blanche Hogle's name was omitted last week from the list of successful candidates in the recent school examinations. Blanche obtained a public school leaving certificate at Bath where she had been attending school.

Mrs. Bennett, of the Queen's, rides a new wheel. We have many lady cyclists in town and some who can give the men a good hard race.

Adam Wiseman, of Syracuse, is visiting relatives and renewing acquaintances here. Mrs. W. A. Baker and son, Percy, and Mrs. S. J. Sprule spent last week visiting in Kingston.

Lena Sharpe is spending part of the vacation at Dr. Gibson's, Kingston. Grace Mabey is also visiting relatives in the limestone city.

On Tuesday evening, the 11th of this month, a concert will be held in the Methodist church here, in aid of the pipe organ fund.

James Clark and wife, Gananoque, are spending a few days at Mrs. Clark's father's, George Manour.

George Walker, of "A" battery, Kingston, is spending a holiday in the village.

Visitors: Mrs. Chauncey, Rochester, at CAMP HAZELDELL.

Dear EXPRESS.—The weather of late has been rather sultry to say the least, but the showers have been very refreshing.

Daddy Borland has kept up his reputation as angler, having caught the first pike of the season trolling.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and family, from Napanee, favored us with a flying visit, took a meal, had a sail, and no doubt slept the sleep of the just.

On Sunday, Mrs. Alcombrack and sons, Mrs. Goodwin and son, Miss Mellow, Mr. John Mellow and Mr. Card took our boats for Hudson Park to hear a sermon preached, but they did not seem much elated over it. We do not have preaching at Camp Hazeldell, but prefer to spend the day without noise, have a little song, etc., and retire early—we did not come here to attract attention.

A great many boats, both steam and sail, pass and repass here on Sunday's. For a christian community it does not look very well. We do not want to follow in the footsteps of our American cousins. They seem to have their base ball matches and all their pleasures on that day—they need missionaries at home for their own people instead of the "heathen Chinese." Our people are following them without much coaxing.

Regattas seem to be all the rage at present. Our fellows from Ontario showed up well at the Halifax regatta, coming in first, acquitting themselves all the rural city of Belleville, after years of talking over a summer carnival, have concluded to have a regatta next week. I hope there will be no squealing as in the last, but everything go off smoothly.

Took a drive to Gosport, saw James Jaynes, Esq. He showed us over his ranch. His crops are magnificent, very heavy. Wheat and oats the best I have seen for many years. He seems to be a good farmer. All is in apple pie order. Wherever I have been the crops are good. The late rains have done wonders. I hope the farmer's heart will rejoice. His wallet well filled with good Canadian bills, not (American silver.) The gold fever is on at Kootenay, B.C. They have struck it rich there. Gentlemen, Canada to the front. What with gold mines richer than Eldorado, good crops, a good Grit government. Mr. Editor, we will have to keep our heads level and not get off our base. Yours,

J. H. PHILIP.

Be Well and You Will Be Happy.
Paine's Celery Compound
Nature's Avenue to Health.

If you are sick and out of sorts, it is within your power to make yourself healthy and strong.

There is not the slightest reason why you should go through the hot summer weather feeling miserable, languid and melancholic.

To be well, means happiness and true joy, and this is the season that you should be bright, hearty and glad.

Let us, with sincerity and honesty direct your attention to Paine's Celery Compound, nature's avenue to health and perfect physical strength and robustness.

This marvellous health-giving medicine begins its vitalizing work at the great nerve centre, and soon braces up the weak and frail body, giving every organ that is out of tune that full vigor and strength so necessary for the complete working of the whole human frame.

Paine's Celery Compound is suited for all ages and conditions; it is purely vegetable, pleasant to use, and prompt and efficacious in the most dangerous and subtle cases. Thousands now living owe their lives to this wonderful medicine that always makes sick people well.

If you are a doubter, and have not any friends that can vouch for all that is said about Paine's Celery Compound, send for our book of convincing cures; mailed free to any address. Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osagood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ANCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

NAPANEE, FRIDAY AUG. 7, 1896.

THE Liberals have protested 11 seats in Ontario. The Conservatives did not lodge a single protest.

Mr. Parte has already discharged over 200 men from the Public Works Department and the Civil Service staff will be reduced all along the line. The departments of the Civil Service are crowded with useless employees who have waxed fat at the expense of the taxpayers of Canada. The reductions cannot be made too soon.

THE Democrats of the United States are between the devil and the deep sea at present. They have to choose between two evils Protection or Free Silver and repudiation. Speaking on this subject and the growth of socialism which has made silver an issue Prof. Goldwin Smith says: "The feature of American policy to which, if to any, the growth of Socialistic tendencies may be ascribed, is protectionism, which has taught the people to look to legislation for their bread, instead of looking to themselves. Paternalism, of which protectionism is a species, and Socialism are at bottom the same thing, under different names, though worked in opposite interests by different hands." Speaking of the choice before the people, Protection vs. Free Silver the same writer says: "An intelligent citizen, however opposed to protectionism, cannot help seeing that a bad tariff, which might presently be amended, is a less evil than a crash, commercial, political and social, which would threaten the very life of the republic." That this is the view taken by the sound money Democrats is evidenced by the number of leading Democratic papers that have deserted Bryan and have come

TOWN COUNCIL.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
August 3rd. 1896.

Council met in regular session, Mayor Carson, presiding, present, Symington, Alexander, Miller, Perry, Lowry, Aylsworth and Madole.

Communications from Jno. Ronald, The Napanee Engine Co., Reany Reid & Selby, Kingston, and Mair Bros., Napanee, re repairs to the Fire Engine were read and laid on the table.

A communication from the Board of Education giving the estimated requirements of the Public Schools, of Napanee, $5420 for the fiscal year and asking the council to provide in accordance with the Public School Act by assessments, $4,025 the sum required from the town, and to provide $2650, for the High School the balance required from the town. Referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. McCabe was heard in reference to the impounding of his horse. He claimed that his horse was impounded illegally. The matter was referred to the Street Committee to report.

Mr. C. B. Warner was granted the privilege of laying down building material on John St under the usual conditions.

A petition from the Fire Brigade was read praying the council to grant the Brigade $40 to assist them to attend the demonstration at Lindsay to which they had been invited. Referred to the Fire Water & Light Committee to report.

A petition signed by the requisite number of ratepayers asking that a new walk be put down on the north side of Mill Street was referred to the Street Committee to report.

The treasurer's monthly statement showing the amount over drawn to be $2,964, was read and ordered filed.

The chairman of the Finance Committee submitted the estimates for the fiscal year, from Aug. 1st, 1896 to Aug. 1st, 1897; expenditure, $32,685.40; receipts, $7,896.20.

After considerable discussion the Treasurer was instructed to notify those owing for granolithic walks that if they did not settle their accounts forthwith they would be placed in court for collection.

On motion the rate for town purposes was placed at 18 1/2 mills and the rate for school purposes at 8 1/2 mills and the clerk instructed to draw up a by-law in accordance with the report and submit it at the next regular meeting.

The tenders for the repairs to the Fire Engine was next taken up and after considerable discussion the clerk was instructed to write John G. Ronald, of Brussels, suggesting that he send down a man at once to inspect the Fire Engine and give the council an estimate of what it would cost to repair it.

The Chief was instructed to notify the poundkeeper not to let animals out of the pound until the poundage is paid, and to make a return of all money collected by him for poundage purposes.

AN IMMENSE LIBRARY.

That of the British Museum Has Nearly Forty Miles of Shelves.

Sir E. Maunde Thompson gives some figures to show the extent of the library of printed books at the British Museum, and the rate of increase at which it has grown. More than half a century after the foundation of the museum the library had not increased even threefold. In the year 1821 there were less than 116,000 volumes. But twenty years had not elapsed when these had more than doubled in number. In 1838 there were computed to be 236,000 volumes in the department. Twenty years later these again had more than doubled. In 1858 there were 550,000 volumes. Having once obtained an impetus, the mass rapidly increased and this moment the number of volumes is calculated to amount to the enormous total of 1,750,000, not counting single sheets or parts of works that are accumulating.

The space which this mass of printed material occupies has to be reckoned in miles. The shelves of the reading room and iron galleries constructed around it, which are known as the

MISS HELEN KELLER.

DEAF, DUMB AND BLIND, SHE IS YET WELL EDUCATED.

This Remarkable Young Girl is Now Preparing to Take a College Course—How She Prepared Herself—How She Hears.

Helen Keller, deprived when nineteen months old of the powers of speech, hearing and sight, is now, at the age of 16 years, entering upon a course of studies which, she expects, will result in her receiving from Radcliffe College, the annex of Harvard University, the degree of bachelor of arts. She expects to recite in the same class, to pass the same examinations, and to enter in the same competitions with young women who are in possession of every faculty. She will enter Dr. Gilman's school in Cambridge this fall to complete her final preparation for Radcliffe.

Much was printed several years ago concerning this exceptionally gifted girl. She is developing into a woman of beauty and attainments. She is fulfilling all the promise of her younger years, when Richard Watson Gilder and Edmund Clarence Stedman dedicated poems to her, and the scientific world was discussing her remarkable case.

Her father is an editor in Tusculum, Ala. He is a descendant of the Fairfaxes of Virginia, and her mother was a Massachusetts Adams. She inherited a taste for literature and the study of languages.

She lost three of her senses when an infant, and practically nothing was done for her education until she was taken in charge when 7 years old by Miss Sullivan, who has been her companion and teacher ever since.

The child learned to understand language by feeling the organs of speech of the persons who addressed her. She learned to talk by imitating the motions of the lips, larynx and teeth, which she observed in others. Her sense of touch became her eyes. She received impressions from the outside world by vibration, by touch, and by the spelling of words into her hand by means of the so-called manual alphabet.

Miss Keller has in this way learned to speak English, French and German, with almost equal facility. Since she has been a pupil of the Wright-Humason school in this city she has read many of the German and French classics by means of raised letters. In a clear, well-modulated voice she quotes Shakespeare, Schiller and Racine.

A Frenchman whom the girl met recently, heard her speak, and did not detect her inability to see and hear until she astonished him by putting her fingers to his lips to ascertain what he was saying. Her eyes are clear and bright. Her face is cheerful, and she has none of the hopeless look so common to those who are blind.

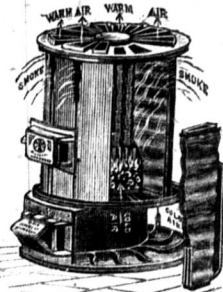

She has made some progress in mathematics, although on account of her imaginative and poetic disposition she does not reach the average in the exact sciences. She has written some sketches which show an insight and observation which would hardly seem possible to one with such limitations. She has an exceptional gift of language and her productions are rhetorically perfect.

She will be accompanied during her college course by Miss Sullivan, who will interpret to her by a sort of telegraph upon the palm of the hand what the teachers are saying. She will sit in the class room, and were it not for the woman beside her constantly holding her hand, it would be impossible to distinguish her from the 23-eyed and bright-faced young women and her. She has attained such a 4 4 5 in using the voice, which, on, per herself heard, that her 5 5 3 emphasis are entirely 1

The Most Economical ...House Warmer

The "Kelsey" Corrugated Warm Air Generator.

Any ordinary Hot Air Furnace will produce heat if you will only supply enough fuel. The "Kelsey" has several special and valuable features but most important is that it will give more heat with less fuel and is the most durable heater made.

The "Kelsey" fire pot being constructed of several upright, tubular, corrugated, cast iron sections (see cut) around which the fire passes and up through which the cold air passes while being heated, and this entire section being wrapped with a heavy steel casing which becomes heated by the fire striking it when passing down outside of upright sections towards smoke pipe, it in turn warms the air that passes up through this steel casing and the galvanized iron casing, this explains why the "Kelsey" has three times more radiating surface and warm air capacity than an ordinary Furnace. The "Kelsey" heats every room evenly, wherever located, with a nice, mild, healthful warm air that will not injure your furniture.

The "Kelsey" will heat rooms 50 feet distant.

The "Kelsey" does not heat your cellar.
The "Kelsey" is absolutely gas and dust proof.

THE FORESTRY MOVEMENT.

Among the economic reforms which are at the present engaging the attention of statesmen and legislators there is none of greater importance to the future welfare of the country than the appreciation of the principles of practical forestry in the management of our timber resources. Old nations have long since been compelled by the necessities of the case, to take stringent measures for preserving the forests from destruction, and Canadians should be wise enough to profit by their experience, without waiting for the worst evils caused by deforestation.
The annual report of Mr. Thomas Southworth, Clerk of Forestry, just received, contains a great deal of valuable information on the subject.
It presents a comprehensive review of the progress of the science of forestry, and the more important developments of the movement in the United States and elsewhere. The problem in Ontario is dealt with at length, and some conclusions presented which show the question in a new light and tend to remove many popular misconceptions. Mr. Southworth has no sympathy with the view that forests should be kept untouched by the axe.
He points out that the true economical policy is to grow trees wherever they can be grown better than any other crop, and to maintain perpetual reserves on the comparatively sterile broken soil that is unfit for farming purposes. But he would treat timber as a crop to be harvested when mature, care being taken, however, to ensure its reproduction. Farmers will find much in the report to interest and instruct them regarding the utilization of waste lands by tree-planting. Many facts and statistics are given in connection with lumbering, pulp-making and wood manufactures, showing what kinds of timber are valuable for manufacturing purposes, or likely to become so. The observance of Arbor Day in the schools, the effect of clearing the forests on the water supply and other subjects are dealt with.
Among the contents of the report are carefully prepared special articles on the cultivation and economic value of some forest trees, by Mr. A. Kirkwood of the Crown Lands Department, and a well written description of Algonquin Park by Mr. T. M. Gibson. Anyone desirous of obtaining a copy of the report can do so by sending his name worth, Bureau of Forestry, Parliam-

the rest of the department to eleven

The Former Slave Market.

On benches so placed as to command a good view where the buyers, coarse-looking Turks, whose calm, searching gaze seem to take in every detail.
The merchant conducting the sale stood before them, talking and gesticulating with great vehemence. He turned to one of the pens, which was filled with young Circassian women, most of whom were very handsome. They were seated close together on the ground in an attitude of listless despondency their white garments showing around them, and as they gazed up at me with their sad, dark eyes, I felt painfully how they must envy the free and happy stranger who came to look on them in their infancy and misery.

The slave-trader, came forward, followed by a phlegmatic-looking Turk, and seizing one of the women by the arm, forced her to stand up before this man, who, it appeared, wished to buy her. He proceeded to inspect her, very much in the same manner as he might have examined a horse or a dog, and his decision was unfavorable; he turned away with a contemptuous movement of the head, and the slave-merchant, in a rage, thrust back the unfortunate girl, who sank down trembling, among her companions in captivity. This scene was as much as we could stand, and we left the place hurriedly at once; it is well indeed that such rites can be witnessed no more;
at least in Europe.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Food of Whales.

The food of whales has long been known to consist of minute sea crustacea. Mr. Gray was familiar not only with the whale's food, but observed its manner of feeding, and the way in which it took its nap "after meals."
"No doubt," he wrote, "whales are very particular in the quality of their food, for they are never to be found feeding where the water is dirty, but almost invariably in clean, clear, dark-blue or light olive-green water. The usual way in which a whale feeds is to choose a spot where the food is plentiful, and swim backward and forward for two or three hundred yards, with the nose just under water. They invariably swim from one side of the boat back again to where they started from with their mouths open. They then close their jaws and swallow the food caught."

"They will go on in this way feeding for an hour or more, after that they will disappear under the nearest ice and sleep there until they come out for exercise or for another meal.
Unlike other warm-blooded animals, they do not require to breathe through their nostrils while asleep, and they do not do so. Whales can sleep as well under water as they do upon the surface, as I have often seen them disappear under solid ice and remain there for many hours at a time. Sometimes they fall asleep with their heads down and only their tails standing out of the water."—London Spectator.

short address, a copy of which taken from the Philadelphia Press, I send you, says Superintendent Johnston of the Indian State Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, thinking you may be interested in reading it. Helen is a fine-looking young girl, absolutely art-less and pure in heart and mind. The evils of this life have been kept from her, and she stands the personification of all that is sweet, pure and lovable.
It has been said of her that "her accomplishments and intellect are trifles in comparison with her exquisite character." Deprived, when about eighteen months old, of both sight and hearing by a terrible fever, she never acquired speech and remained deaf, dumb and blind until 7 years of age, when Miss Anna Sullivan was sent by Mr. Ango-nos, director of the Perkins Institute for the Blind, at Boston, to instruct her. What followed is now well known.
She rapidly acquired speech, and now, when but a few weeks over 16, she speaks not only the English language, but also French and German, and will soon enter Harvard to complete her general education. Her progress has been marvelous in the widest sense of the term, and the previous training of Laura Bridgeman is eclipsed in every way.

Helen is a tall girl for her age, well developed and graceful, fearless and free in her movements, unlike most of the blind. She is cheerful and full of life and jollity, and not only appreciates fun, but often is the cause of it. Her memory is tenacious and marvelous, and she possesses a fund of information upon almost every subject.
In this connection it is proper to add that Helen is very frequently held up as an example of what can be done in giving speech to the deaf. This is unfair and misleading to many parents of such children. Helen should not be used as a standard for comparison, for she stands far and away beyond the average child either hearing or deaf, in mental endowments.—New York Her-

Her Preference.

He—Which would you prefer to be,
Miss Maud, a broker or a banker?
She—I think I would prefer to be a

The Reason.

"Come, let us reason together," says
the young woman to the young man, who has just made the rusty old cry of
"The women are crowding us out."
"Well, I don't mind listening to your talk, but I can't see how that will increase my salary, or open more avenues for making money," he says respectfully, yet doggedly.

"I am not keeping you out of a position, nor keeping your salary down, at all. I am only trying to earn my own living, and I have to earn yours," she answered spiritedly.

"Just look at the thousands of girls who are now holding positions that were held by men and at much better salaries. Doesn't that mean that thousands of men have been crowded out?"

"No, it doesn't. We never get a position unless there is a vacancy. We don't make vacancies, we only fill them."

"Well, if you weren't around, they would have to take us."

"But we can't help being around."
"Yes, that's so."—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

The Unconscious Humorist.

"I would feel more at home on a scaffold than I do on a platform," said the carpenter who was making his first public speech before the unions.

And then he declared that he would be hanged if he could tell what they were all laughing at.

ACME OF CRUELTY.

The Horrible Torture Invented by Comanche Indians.

Colonel R. I. Dodge, who was stationed for years on the frontier, where he had abundant opportunity to study the Indian, has written a book about them. In it he tells of the fiendish cruelty of a party of Comanches who captured a Mexican during a raid. They started with him to their camp across what are called the "Stake Plains."

"At a water-hole on this tableland," continues Colonel Dodge, "the party halted for several days. Telling the prisoner they wanted it for some religious ceremony, they set him to digging a hole in the ground. Working with a knife and hands, he in a day or two completed a pit about three feet in diameter and over five feet deep. Early the next morning a rope was tied about the ankles of the captive and wound spirally round his legs and body to the neck, binding his arms tightly to his sides. Rigid and immovable, the man was then planted upright, like a post in the hole, the dirt filled in and tightly rammed down around him. When all was completed nothing but his head was visible. Then they scalped his head, cut off his lips and eyelids, taunted and left him."

"On their arrival in camp the party described in detail their punishment of the Mexican, and in all the tribe it was regarded as an exquisite piece of pleasantries. The man would live they said, eight days, revived at night by the cold of the high plains, to be driven mad the next day by the hot sun beating on his scalped head and defenceless eyeballs."

Utilizing Bulky Refuse.

A large amount of valuable material may be utilized if cooked. Pea pods, string beans, apples, squashes and many other articles if thoroughly boiled will furnish a quantity of food that is really more serviceable than too much grain. Ducks and geese may be kept at but little expense by such mode of feeding, while turkeys and chickens will appreciate the change at once. Turnips and carrots if cooked and fed to all kinds of fowls will furnish a cheap and nutritious diet, promoting the health and preventing too much fat. In feeding such material no grain is necessary except at night. One of the most valuable foods is cooked potatoes and sour milk. If this is fed, being first thickened with ground oats, it will cause the hens to lay more eggs than when an exclusive grain diet is given.

A Home-made Drinking Fountain.

The cleanest and cheapest home-made drinking fountain is constructed as follows: Take an empty fruit can, and with a wire nail or sharp end of a file, make a hole through the tin can about one-fourth to one-half inch from the open end. Fill the can with clean, fresh water, place a saucer upside down on the level ground. This will leave the can setting upside down in the saucer, and the saucer will stand full of water up to the hole in the can. This is the nicest way to water chickens, and is economical. They cannot get into it with their feet, and it runs out only as fast as they drink it. This should be tried now.—Country Gentleman.

latter when in a good smoker which fires best and is very effective, it is advisable to keep a good supply at hand. Seasoned hickory or hard maple are best, though beech, soft maple, etc., are good. The most improved bellows smokers, when supplied with such fuel, sawed five or six inches long and split into bits half an inch or less in size, will burn all day and be ready at any time to give a good volume of blue smoke, by which bees of most of the races now cultivated in this country are subdued at once.

With Italian or black bees a puff or two of smoke should be given at the hive entrance, and the cover and honey board, or quilt, removed slowly and carefully, smoke being driven in as soon as the least opening is made and the volume increased enough to keep down all bees as fast as the covering is removed. The smoker may then be placed on the windward side of the hive to allow the fumes to pass over the top and toward the operator. The frames may then be gently pried loose and lifted out carefully without crushing a bee if it can be avoided. Crushing bees fills the air with the odor of poison, which irritates the bees. So also when one bee is provoked to sting, others follow because of the odor of poison.

Too much smoke will often render certain manipulations difficult; for example, when queens are to be sought out, or nuclei or artificial swarms made, volumes of smoke blown in between the combs will drive the bees from them so that they will cluster in clumps on the bottoms of the frames or in the corners of the hives. A little observation and judgment will enable one to know when the bees need smoke

TO HIS HONOR THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR IN COUNCIL.

We, the undersigned Commissioners, appointed under "The County Councils Act, 1906," by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, to divide the County of Lennox and Addington into County Council divisions, report that having duly heard and considered all the evidence adduced before us, and having had due regard to the provisions of the said Act, we have divided the said County into County Council divisions for the purposes of said Act, as follows:

The first County Council division to consist of the Townships of Denbigh, Ashby, Edlingham, Atlinger, Androsia, Kaledar, and Sheffield, to be called "Highlands Division."

The second County Council Division to consist of the Township of Camden and the Village of Newburgh, to be called "Camden Division."

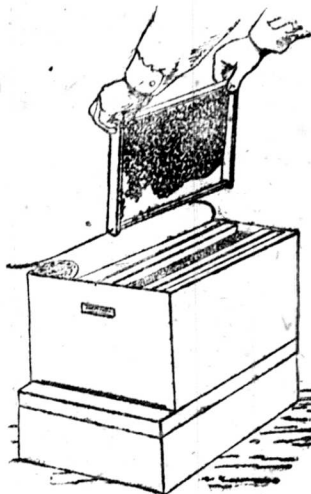

The third County Council division to consist of the Townships of Ernestown, and Amhurst Island, and the Village of Bath, to be called "Ernestown Division."

The fourth County Council division to consist of the Townships of Adolphustown, South Fredericksburgh and North Fredericksburgh, to be called "C. E. Division."

The fifth County Council division to consist of the Township of Richmond and the Town of Napanee, to be called "Napanee Division."

All of which is respectfully submitted.
Dated at the Town of Napanee in the said County of Lennox and Addington, the twenty-second day of July, 1906.

REMOVING COMB FROM HIVE.

and how much of it to prevent any outbreak on their part, which it is always best to forestall rather than be obliged to quell after it is fully under way.

The frame hive as now made—with metal rabbets and arrangements for surplus honey, and quilts instead of honey boards—reduces propolization to a minimum and renders the danger of irritating the bees by jarring when manipulating much less. As a prerequisite to rapid and safe manipulation perfectly straight combs are necessary.—Frank Benton's Manual of Apiculture, issued by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

BARN YARD SCRAPER.

How to Make one That Does Not Dig Into the Ground.

For cleaning off a barnyard when dirty there is nothing better than a scraper so constructed as not to dig into the ground. A cheap and serviceable one may be made by almost any farmer. Take an inch board (A A in cut) four feet long and 12 to 16 inches wide. The side arms (C C) reach from the tongue to hooks or pivots (E E), as depicted. The handles are fastened to be in comfortable reach when the scraper is vertical, or nearly so. The object is to scrape the top merely, instead of thrusting into the ground, as a scraper is contrived to do. A lever (D) which is hinged to back end of tongue and provided with a otch at the proper point, will hold the scraper in an upright position. When the load is to be dumped, raise the lever, thus disengaging its hold on the notch, whereupon the scraper will turn forward with the handles on arms (C C). If board A has a thickness of only one inch, it will be necessary to strengthen it with cross-battens, as shown by dotted lines.

The Hen House Floor.

Sand makes a nice covering for the floor of the laying house during summer, because the hens need scratching material and gritty substance that they can pick over. Bugs will to some extent find it a good place to be, but only until the hen's sharp eye spies them. If you use sand, be careful to rake it over every day, keeping it fresh and clean, as it soon packs down and becomes hard and uninviting to hens to pick among.

A Good Insecticide.

A reader asks me whether tobacco dust should be applied to vines when they are wet with dew or when they are dry. This moves me to say that the tobacco dust, or the bone meal, or the mixture of both, is not intended as a coating for the leaves, which would make them poisonous or unpalatable, but as a covering for the soil, that will make the atmosphere very uncomfortable for all insects and worms. I like to have the material remain dry and dusty as long as possible. In that case it has a more thorough effect on bugs and beetles that have hard shells. The wet tobacco or tobacco tea, or even the fumes of wet tobacco, are very unwholesome to the soft-bodied insects, worms, etc. I find that cucumber beetles do not like to work in dust, and least of all in tobacco dust. When I put this latter inch deep around melon or cucumber plants, the yellow-striped beetle promptly takes its departure and will stay away as long as the tobacco remains dusty or as long as it gives off a strong tobacco smell.

Let me repeat, too, that this same waste material is one of our best and cheapest general insecticides. We can use it both under glass and in open air. By all means keep a good supply of it on hand. Possibly you can get sweepings from a near cigar factory, or you may buy the material by the barrel at about $2.50 or $3. It will last you for years and help you to keep the premises clear of the various pests that prey upon your crops and animals. If you scatter tobacco dust by hand or with bellows, over your rows of peas, just at nightfall, you can kill the slugs that are so often eating all the lower foliage off and greatly damage the crop. Or if you dust it in the same way over your currant and gooseberry bushes, when infested with worms, you will quickly see the worms disappear. In the same way you can quickly kill all the leaf-eating worms and slugs on your trees and bushes everywhere. The tent caterpillar and the fall web-worm, and all other caterpillars on trees and plants, give up the ghost within a few minutes after coming in contact with tobacco dust. And besides all this, tobacco dust is worth about what it costs as a fertilizer.—Practical Farmer.

ment, especially when a confession is wanted from a criminal, is to place him where a drop of water will fall upon one certain spot in his shaven crown for hours, or days, if necessary. The torture this inflicts is proved by an experience that Sandow, the strong man, had.

When he was in Vienna a few years ago a school teacher bet him that he would not be able to let a half litre of water drop upon his hand until the measure was exhausted. A half litre is only a little more than a pint. Sandow laughed at the very idea of his not being able to do this. A half litre measure was procured and a hole drilled in the bottom just sufficient to let the water escape drop by drop.

Then the experiment began. Sandow laughed and chatted gayly at first. The schoolmaster kept count upon the number of drops. At about the two hundredth Sandow grew a little more serious. Soon an expression of pain crossed his face. With the entrance into the third hundredth his hand began to swell and grow red. Then the skin burst. The pain grew more and more excruciating. Finally at the four hundred and twentieth drop, Sandow had to give up and acknowledge himself vanquished.—Pittsburg Despatch.

Talking to Them.

There is a fish-dealer in New York who has a large number of rich customers. Once or twice a week his store can be found full of ladies who are doing their own marketing. The dealer is all smiles to his customers on such days, and very anxious to keep their goodwill and trade. For some time an Irishman had been coming in the place, and after going from stand to stand, and peering long and closely at the fish, he usually wound up by purchasing some cheap specimen of the finny tribe, and departing. This was annoying to the dealer when his place was full of customers, and so one morning when the Irishman entered and began going from one stand to another as usual he called out:

"Look here, my good man, what are you always smelling my fish for?"

The question was heard by every one, and they listened for the answer. "Faith, olm-not smellin' thim; it's talkin' to thim of am."

"Talking, did you say?"

"Yis; sure olm askin' thim the news from the sea."

"Well," said the dealer, impatiently, "what did they say?"

"Sure, they didn't know, yer honor; they felt me they hadn't been there fer over a month."—Harper's Round Table.

An Effective Retort.

The car was just about full. That is, there were no vacant seats, although a very fat woman, who must have weighed in the neighborhood of three hundred pounds, might have squeezed her surplus avoirdupois together had she been so inclined. At Chestnut street a man boarded the car, and he was very thin. In fact, he might, at a pinch, have secured a position in a museum, as a living skeleton. He looked hard at the fat woman for a few minutes, and when the conductor came in to collect his fare he pointedly remarked: "You evidently don't charge for weight on this line." Before the conductor had time to reply, the fat woman, who had noticed the hard looks cast in her direction: "No, they don't charge for weight. If they did they would never have stopped for you."—Philadelphia Record.

White Spots on the Nails.

The little white spots appearing on the finger nails are due to some subtle action of the blood, upon which all the bones, sinews, muscles and organs in the body are dependant for nutrition. They sometimes disappear of their own accord, but there is no know cure. In reality they signify no derangement of the system.

Bicycles as Law Makers.

Bicycles are creating a good deal of new law in Great Britain. In England they have been declared to be vehicles; in Scotland, in a case to recover insurance for death due to a bicycle accident, they have been declared to be not vehicles, the judge declaring that they could be no more considered such than skates.

STRATHROY DAIRY SCHOOL.

Its Equipment and the Work It Has Done and Its Progress.

When the Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, decided to establish a branch dairy school at Strathroy for the convenience of the western part of the province, there were not a few who considered that such action was inopportune, as they asserted that the number of students who would take advantage of the school would be very limited. Such, however, has not been the case, and it is evident, says Farming for July, in spite of the depression in dairying, that the school is well appreciated, and will be still more so in the future.

The school building, of which we give illustrations, was formally opened on February 14th last. It is a large and substantial brick structure, with large, airy and well lighted rooms, and is furnished with a complete outfit of the latest appliances for butter and cheese making and milk testing. All the apartments are well arranged, not only for the work, but also for the comfort of the students.

The school is under the directorship of Dr. Mills, M.A., LL.D., president of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Mr. F. J. Sleightholm, B.S.A., is the resident superintendent, and is also instructor in milk testing. The instructor in cheesemaking is Mr. W. Wadell, and in buttermaking Messrs. H. Smith and J. E. Crealy. The course lasts two weeks and the capacity of the school is thirty students, fifteen in each department. The school is on the same plan as the Kingston Dairy School, and bears to the college at Guelph the same relation as a public school does to a high school.

A 20-horse power engine supplies power to the buttermaking machinery. The butter department contains three power separators, a Russian, with a capacity of 1,200 pounds per hour; an Alpha De Laval, of 2,500 pounds, and an Alexandra, of 1,000 pounds. A hand separator of 200 pounds capacity is also kept. About 60 pounds of butter a day was made during the session which ended in April last. A twin cream vat was used to ripen the cream, and a Mason worker for handling the product most of which was sold in Strathroy and London. For storing the butter until it was shipped a refrigerator of 500 pounds capacity was erected. A very neat arrangement just inside the butter room, in the shape of a draining table, with two steam jets, has been found an admirable adjunct to the department.

In the milk testing department four Babcock milk testers have been used. Skim milk, buttermilk, whey, whole milk and cream have been tested daily. The students have been thoroughly drilled in this important department in all its phases, and the use of a Quevenne lactometer has been fully explained. This department has acted as a check upon the others, and skim milk, buttermilk and whey have stood the testing well, the two former rarely exceeding one-tenth of one per cent. of butter fat, and the latter two-tenths. Milk has been paid for according to the per cent. of butter fat.

Six hundred pounds of milk were consumed daily in the cheese room. This department contains two vats of 300

Man's View Of Marriage.

"IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE?"

It is not uncommon for men to bewail the fact that marriage so seldom means a real companionship—that man and wife are separated by difference of taste, of mental outlook, of general interest in life. It is perhaps even more common to hear women blamed for what is called breach of contract in the marriage relation. If the wife be delicate, run-down, nervous and irritable, if her smile and her spirits have taken flight, it worries her husband as well as herself. Even worse symptoms may follow—the woman suffers from sleeplessness and fainting spells, her head is in a whirl, her back aches, and she has that awful crowding-down feeling in the abdomen. It depends on the woman whether she will permit these troubles to continue day by day leading to a life of misery.

Thousands have been cured by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and why not you? A healthy woman is always interesting; she passes for a beauty because she is happy, and her good spirits are contagious. Good nature goes with health; irritability and peevishness with sickness.

Those who suffer from the derangements, disorders and diseases of the sex should remember that Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has, for over a quarter of a century, made the diseases of women a specialty. Send thirty-one (31) cents (for postage and duty) to him, at above address, for his great medical book of 1000 pages profusely illustrated with wood-cuts and colored plates.

It contains photographs, names and addresses of a vast number who have been cured.

You can correspond with them and learn how they cured themselves without having to consult a doctor.

AN IDEAL RATION.

Three Important Particulars in the Quality of a Ration.

An ideal ration is more than what is termed a balanced ration, says the Country Gentleman. A particular combination of foods may be ideal in the proportions of digestible nutrients which it contains, and at the same time be not the best possible ration in other respects.

There are three important particulars which must be considered in judging the quality of a ration: First, its palatableness; second, its ease of digestion; and third, its composition.

For a thousand-pound dairy cow of large milk capacity, we should regard the following as one of the best possible rations for maintaining a high rate of production:

	Protein.	Carb'h's.	Fats.
10 lb. early-cut, well-cured over hay.....	0.65	3.50	0.10
30 lb. corn ensilage.....	0.40	4.20	0.21
3 lb. corn meal.....	0.21	1.90	0.13
2 lb. wheat bran.....	0.25	0.90	0.03
3 lb. pea meal.....	0.54	1.70	0.03
3 lb. fused meal.....	0.81	1.00	0.08
Total.....	2.86	13.20	0.67
Total digestible matter, 16.73 lbs.
Nutritive ratio, 1 to 5.1.

The above ration contains a desirable variety, including one succulent food, has a larger proportion of those materials most easily digested, and is generous in quantity. In fact, it is a ration which is best adapted to the ideal cow, that is, the vigorous animal with large milk capacity. The quantity and proportion of protein are somewhat larger than in the German standard ration, and we believe this to be a change in the right direction. We regard it as unfortunate that there has been a tendency in this country to advocate a ration with a nutritive ratio wider than 1 to 5.5. To be sure it has been shown that it is the practice of certain American farmers to feed rations with a wider ratio, but a practice is not necessarily in accord with a correct standard.

Keeping a Milk Record.

To know something of what the cows are doing it is necessary to keep a record of the milk from day to day. Hang up a bit of board and a pencil in the stable, with scales for weighing. Tack upon his wooden hobby horse the weight in his rubber cups. The laughter started say. Across the room he went. And smiled upon the new hat. And the wooden stool he sat. 'Tis said, through sin to sudden tears. Her little head a quiver gave. The phrenology came true!

Years after, when the play was read, And through the crowded seats Brave men to battle marched away Amid the trumpet's blast. One watched with all a mother's pride Their captain strong and tall; Yet as she looked with loving eyes, The poignant faded all. She only saw a fair-haired child Who galloped to the war. Upon his wooden hobby horse, Across the nursery floor.

LOVE AND BUSINESS.

"Purely a business arrangement, Mr. Quennell! Oh, you need not look grave over it; we always knew that Margaret was a steady, clear-headed, practical girl, and she has shown her good sense in accepting Joseph Postgate. A most suitable match; keeps the business together capably."

"Do you speak with authority or only on conjecture, Miss Smith?" asked her companion, seriously.

"Why we all know it. Margaret was in at my house last Friday talking about all the arrangements of the wedding, as coolly as if it was only a picnic or a tennis party. There is no love about it and neither of them makes any pretense at it."

Mr. Quennell shook his head.

"I should not have thought Margaret was that kind of a girl," he said, and he ruminated sadly as he walked away.

He had known Margaret Postgate all her life. Her father had been one of his warmest friends and he had been as familiar in the house as a relative. It was at his suggestion that Mr. Postgate had, during his last illness, invited his far-away cousin, Joseph Postgate, to become manager of his business.

Joseph was a big, young man, to whom might be applied the adjectives that Mrs. Smith had used in speaking of Margaret—steady, clear-headed, practical. He had come among them quite a stranger and had won confidence at once. His management of the business showed that he deserved it, but his treatment of Margaret, both before her father's death and since, had been so very cool and so severely business-like that Mr. Quennell was surprised to find after a two-months' absence from the town that the two were engaged to be married. Undoubtedly it was the best thing for the business, but it is not quite a nice thing for a girl to marry for such a reason. Mrs. Smith might be mistaken; he would use the privilege of an old friend and go to Margaret herself.

Margaret was just parting from Joseph as Mr. Quennell entered her drawing-room. Old Mrs. Harrow, her companion, was in the room, and certainly the manner of the engaged couple was far removed from tenderness or sentiment.

Margaret's brow was puckered and her face full of seriousness and consideration.

"You will see to the matter, then, Joseph? Remember, I do not wish the old lady to be persecuted, but I am convinced that her scampish son is our real opponent. I should like to get at him without touching her, if possible."

"Very good, I will bear your wishes in mind, and you shall hear again before we take any decided step. Good-bye, Margaret."

"Good-bye," she answered calmly, and they shook hands without any show of emotion or embarrassment.

Mr. Quennell would have liked to see a little embarrassment, and he thought that lovers should kiss at parting. These did not.

As soon as Mrs. Harrow left them alone he began upon the subject so soberly exercised him.

"So you have taken advantage of my absence to get yourself engaged, Margaret?"

"Yes, Mr. Quennell, I should have written to you about it if I had not known you were to return so soon. It seemed the best thing to do, as the business must go on and as it was best ate in the afternoon before she could escape to make a promised visit to a sick woman in a neighboring street.

Alice May was eagerly expecting her.

She was half-sitting, half-lying on her couch, with a flushed face and sparkling eyes, holding a letter in her thin hands.

"Miss Postgate, I've heard from 'Charlie' she cried excitedly. "He is coming to-morrow, and it is all owing to you! Oh, I wish—I wish you could wait to see him!"

"Is he really coming, Alice? I am very glad. Why it makes you look almost well again to know he is so near. What has he been doing since he left you?"

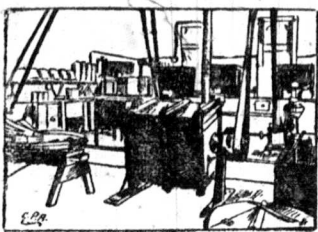

"One job and another, nothing to depend on. The little money he's sent me has been all he could spare. He's got a settled job now in a carpenter's yard, and if I'm well enough to go back with him he says he can manage to keep a roof over our heads. It's all owing to you, Miss Postgate, and the recommendation that you got Mr. Joseph to give him. But, oh, what my poor Charlie has been through!"

"And you, too, Alice. You have suffered quite as much as your husband. If you could have foreseen all you were to go through you would never have had courage to marry."

"Oh, Miss Postgate! And you to be married to-morrow! Would not I go through twice the trouble for the sake of the love? You'll never come to feel the pinch of poverty as we've done, but if you knew that even that was ending upon you, would you turn your heart back from Mr. Joseph to-night, and say you'd rather live without him? No, no, no, you know you wouldn't."

Margaret colored and bit her lips. This woman was preaching the same doctrine as Mr. Quennell, and yet she had never heard Mrs. Smith's commendation of the "business arrangement." And yet marriage with love had brought her with rapid steps along the downward road.

First Charlie had fallen sick and recovered to find himself out of work, with a speedy prospect of having a baby to provide for, as well as himself and his wife. Then the baby had come, a poor little actor on life's stage, whose part was as sad as it was brief.

BUTTER MAKING AT STRATHROY.

pounds capacity each, a curd sink, and cheese gang press, in which six cheeses may be pressed at once.

The sitting rooms, lecture hall, superintendent's office, and lavatories are located upstairs, and furnish every convenience.

During the session lectures were given every morning from 8.30 to 9.30 on the various branches of the work, as well as on the feeding and management of milk cows.

The school reopens in November, and applications for admission are already being made by intending students, thus showing its popularity.

Dairy Suggestions.

Always strain the milk as soon as it is drawn.

Butter once thoroughly warmed through will lose its flavor.

The milking should never be hurried, but the milk be drawn steadily and as it flows.

There is a great difference in dairy salt; test samples before buying in large quantities.

Hot weather is a trying time for butter. Eternal vigilance is the price of a first-class article.

It is the attention paid to seemingly insignificant things in dairying that make or mar the profits.

The Weight of Live Cattle.

The weight of live cattle can be found by measuring around, back of shoulders, square the length, multiply by 7, divide product by 2, and multiply quotient by 5.—Farmer's Advocate.

Keeping Dairy Cows for Profit

The present depressed condition of the prices of almost all farm products has brought us face to face with two great questions: 1st. "How can we produce the greatest quantity of food from the least ground at the least cost?" 2nd. "What shall we do with the food?" Some say, by their actions, sell it, but those themselves are being sold out. By all means let us feed what we grow, and let the cows form the base of our operations. I do not advocate that we should buy expensive cattle. Let us select from the cows we have those that give the fullest pail, having at the same time due respect to the symmetry of the animal. She should be rangy, of good size, capable, when properly fed, of giving a large quantity of milk and raising a calf that when raised and fed will suit the taste of the most aristocratic Englishman; and let us not forget that the value of the calf and the feed has a direct bearing on the value of the cow. There is not much use at the present time advocating breeding either of acute milkers or heifers, because our people are not yet educated to feed them properly. Let us note the best use of what we have, improving them as we go along. The climatic conditions of our country are such that our cattle are exposed to a great deal of cold and rainy weather in the fall, while our winters are so long that we do not care to house them before it is really necessary, for it means both extra work and extra feed. Again in the spring they are kept in the stable until the grass is good, the weather warm, and the conditions favorable to animals' comfort.—D. N. McIntyre, Bruce Co., in Farmer's Advocate.

Milking Cows in Summer.

Unless a dairyman has a perfect stable it never pays to milk cows during the summer season in the winter stable. It is essential to gilt-edged lactical quality that cows be milked in a sweet, pure atmosphere. As soon as the milk leaves the udder and the air strikes it, it is subject to just the degree of contamination with which the air may be impregnated. In a medium of pure air you will have pure milk for a reasonable length of time, or until natural changes cause it to become acid. In other words, if you select a cleanly place in which to milk your cows, the after care of the fluid will be greatly simplified. This is a point well worth observing, and I would exhort dairy-men not to ignore it.—Ohio Farmer.

Dairy Pointers.

Churning at too high a temperature, or too long, will produce greasy butter, in which the grain is injured.

Large cows need more feed than smaller ones, and a cow in the flush of milk needs more than when dry.

business could not do without Joseph, and I have an absurd feeling that as I have grown up with the business it can not do without my money, at any rate, and this was the simplest way of entering into partnership."

"Then it is the business Joseph marries, and not you?"

"Both of us, Mr. Quennell. Do not speak in that disgusted tone. You do not expect either Joseph or me to do the sentimental, surely?"

"I did not expect to see Marget Postgate marry a man without any love for him. I am disappointed in you, Marget. When is this wedding to take place?"

"Tomorrow month," answered Marget, with a little resentment in her voice. She objected to Mr. Quennell's rebuke. "Joseph wished it and there is no reason for delay."

"No occasion to waste time on love-making," he rejoined sarcastically. "Do you waste time on a honeymoon after it?"

"We are going to Paris and Switzerland," she answered, flushing a little angrily. "We decided to do the same sort of thing as other people and I have never been abroad."

Mr. Quennell subsided and kept his forebodings to himself. He resolved to have nothing to do with the wedding, and refused when Marget requested him to give her away, but aging her look of disappointment he relented.

Plain as the wedding was to be, Marget found her time fully occupied during the last month. An innumerable number of matters, trifling and otherwise, insisted on being attended to, and she had little time for thought. She wondered how prospective brides, who had lovemaking also upon their hands, ever got through it all. And yet, amid all the press and worry, she was horrified now and again to find the recollection of Mr. Quennell's warning rise up to confront her as a dreadful doubt.

Suppose that she should weary of Joseph, with her practical business-like habits, his contempt of all idleness and frivolity, his utter independence of her—except from a business point of view?

The last day of her single life arrived—a day full of occupation. It was Joseph's wedding day as it was brief, and what with sorrow of heart and poor living, Alice had fallen into ill-health. Bit by bit the pretty house-furniture had gone to pay the greener and butcher, and nothing was left but the bare necessities. But for one fatal month Charlie took to drink, but love and Alice's heavenly patience reclaimed him. Things were at their worst when Marget Postgate happened to meet them. She learned something of their history and began by employing Charlie on some small job. He heard of some sort of opening in a distant town, and Marget undertook the charge of Alice while he went to see if there was a chance for him. Joseph was well known in that neighborhood and she obtained a recommendation from him for Charlie, and a promise to write to one or two of his acquaintances there.

Joseph had done even more than he had promised, and she felt a glow of gratitude toward him as she remembered the trouble that he had taken over a matter that in no way concerned himself. Perhaps after all, it would be better than she expected, and they would prove to have more in common than business interests.

"I am afraid I do not know much about your sort of love, Alice," she said hurriedly, and bent over to kiss the sick girl. "But I am very thankful if I have been able to help you and your Charlie. I must go now, and you must let me give instead of receiving a wedding present."

She pressed a ten-pound note into Alice's hand and went away home.

She passed a restless night, and what sleep she had was full of dreams of Alice and Charlie and her own future fate. She arose, feeling singularly humble and distrustful of herself. At this moment she would have been willing to beg for a little grace, a short delay for consideration of what she was doing, if only it could be without creating a scandal. She entered the church anxious, troubled, with a beating heart.

She cast a frightened glance up the aisle, expecting to see Joseph, calm, business-like, unruffled, as she had seen him day by day. She saw him, looking bigger, stronger than ever, with a relaxing of the stern lines of his mouth, a misty tenderness in his eyes that she had never seen before.

He was not waiting for her in conventional fashion, he was coming down toward her, coming to fetch her. He was at her side, he held out his hand and she felt hers thrill in his strong clasp. He led her on, he bent over her and whispered in a deep, passionate voice:

"God bless you, my darling!" and a lead fell from Margaret's heart. It was all right now, somehow, she did not understand it, at all, but how blind she had been!

It was all like a misty dream to her, till she found herself at home again, alone with Joseph. He held her close, showering kisses upon her, calling her by fond names that sounded strange in her ears.

She drew herself away from him.

"I—I did not know it was to be like this," she stammered. "I thought—"

"What did you expect it to be, my darling? Purely a business arrangement?" he asked, in happy mockery. "I knew you liked me. I did not know you cared for me—I was not prepared—"

"Liked you, my Margaret? When I loved you from the first moment that I saw you! You would never see it, and I bore you a grudge for that, till I saw you come into the church today and forgave you."

"Forgave me?"

"Yes, my darling, I forgave you, for I saw that my wife was going to make up for all the shortcomings of my sweetheart."

Then, Mr. Quennell came in and found Margaret with tearful eyes.

"What does this mean?" he asked her in an anxious whisper; "have you begun to repent already?"

"It means," she answered, smiling through the tears, "that we changed everything at the last minute and got married your way, after all."

"Bless the child," he exclaimed. "Then I knew you better than you knew yourself!"

"It seems to me," she said, meekly, "that it was Joseph who knew me best of all."—Examiner.

A Runaway.

While opposite J. J. Taylor's residence, South Napanee, on Wednesday, Bruton's delivery horse took a notion to run away. The driver, Frank Morey, was getting out of the rig, when the horse started, and had his feet on one of the front wheels. Frank was thrown to the ground rather forcibly and as a result was pretty badly bruised and shaken up. The horse ran down as far as the Campbell House where it was stopped. Neither the animal or the rig were damaged in the least.

A Handsome Monument.

Mrs. Catherine Gould, who is visiting friends in town, has purchased from Mr. V. Koubler a fine monument which she will have placed in the Deseronto cemetery on Monday, over the remains of her late husband, Wm. C. Gould. The monument is of a dark shade of granite, and consists of an upright square die resting on a base of the same material, all polished. The whole rests on a good bottom base and will stand 5 ft. 6 in. high.

A Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Patrick's church, Napanee, on Monday when the Rev. Father Hogan united in the holy bonds of matrimony Miss Mary Barrett and Mr. Richard McNeil, two highly respected residents of Napanee. Miss Maggie Barrett, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. Archie McNeil, brother of the groom, did the honors as best man. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only a few intimate friends of the contracting parties. After the ceremony the happy couple left on an extended wedding tour. The Express extends congratulations.

Suspicious of Foul Play.

Mrs. Ellen Murry, who died on Thursday evening last on the schr Lapping at Buffalo, was Irish by birth. A daughter of the deceased, aged about eighteen years, lives with W. H. Day, a farmer in Thurlow, two miles north of the city. She had two sons, one living near Napanee and another in Michigan. The Chief of Police wired the coroner at Buffalo to bury the remains there and if there were any effects to communicate with him. There are strong suspicions of foul play in connection with Mrs. Murray's death. — Belleville Intelligencer.

Died in Youth.

It is our sad duty this week to chronicle the demise of James Delbert Thompson, which sad event occurred at his mother's residence, Robert st., on Monday. Deceased was only a few months over twenty years of age and a very promising young man. He was a victim of that fell disease consumption. He was a bright, affable young man and greatly beloved and respected by his friends and associates. The bereaved mother and family will have the sympathy of all in their affliction. The funeral took place on Wednesday at the R. C. Cemetery and was largely attended.

Inadvertently Omitted.

Miss Florence Scott, of Mount Pleasant school, passed the entrance examination with high standing. Her name was omitted from the list in last week's Express.

Death of Christopher Switzer.

Christopher Switzer, aged 65 years and 6 months, passed away at the residence of his sister, Mrs. S. Collins, Thomas street, on Tuesday, from paralysis. The funeral took place on Thursday to the Switzer's cemetery. Mrs. Collins, his sister, is also quite ill.

'Baseball as She is Played.'

Don't fail to attend the baseball match in the Park this afternoon. The nimble clerks and the heavy hitting printers will there and then battle for supremacy on the diamond. The game promises to be of absorbing interest and brilliant base stealing and double plays will be a few of the interesting features. The match is called for 2 p.m.

Presentation to a Popular Lady.

The choir of the E. M. Church presented Mrs. Deslor (nee Miss Edith Hooper) with a handsome silver teapot on Wednesday, on the eve of her departure for her new home in London. The teapot, a beautiful and artistic one, was engraved with the following inscription: "To Edith, from the choir of the Eastern Methodist Church, Napanee, August 5th, 1896." Mrs. Deslor was a valued member of the choir and the present was given as a slight token of the esteem in which she was held by the members.

What They Do in Germany.

Dutch Peasants are proverbially stolid and slow but they are quick enough to grasp new ideas for increasing their comfort. For years they have used wooden sabots for footwear on account of their lightness and warmth; and now they have stockings made of a yarn which is spun out of pure wood fibre; and their coats and vests are interlined with Fibre Chamois, which is nothing more, or less than a wooden cloth, made as it is entirely from Spruce Fibre. These same stolid peasants realize thoroughly the non-conducting properties of the wood and avail themselves of the inexpensive warmth it provides. Fibre Chamois has a world wide reputation as a warmth giving interlining, for it is so light that its presence is hardly felt in a garment and yet it gives an absolute heartful protection from the coldest blasts of a long stormy winter.

Run Over by a Freight Train.

Wednesday afternoon, about 9:30 o'clock, a tramp, who answers to the name of Tom Hyslop, and claims to belong to Brockville, while attempting to board a freight train at the G. T. R. station, slipped and fell, and the wheels of the car passed over his left arm, about two inches above the

The students who wrote at the late examinations are now on the tenter hooks of uncertainty, and mixed with all their pleasures is the question, "Have I passed?" In years past the results have been made public about the middle of August, and it is expected they will be about the same time this year.

Physicians tell us that dyspepsia is often caused and increased by tea and coffee drinking and that neither should be taken by those suffering from heart affections or feeble indigestion. Mental depression, extremes of melancholia and even suicidal mania is caused by excessive tea and coffee drinking. Cereal takes the place of tea and coffee. It is made from selected grains more fragrant than coffee and less than half the price. Grocers sell it.

sitting at the time was ground up like sawdust. He was thrown out in the meadow adjacent by the force of the collision, and to this he no doubt owes his life. Mr. Switzer is a former resident of Napanee, and is well-known in this district. Fully 60 people were killed and upwards of a hundred badly wounded in the above mentioned accident.

No Fun in Matrimony

Lee Jim, late in the washee washee line in Kingston but now of Watertown, has just returned from a trip to China whither he went to marry the girl of his heart. The trip cost the long haired Jim something in the neighborhood of $800. He found his almond eyed beauty still true and the couple were married in due form, but strange to say Jim returned to America minus his wife. Mrs. Lee Jim, wouldn't cross the ocean because she was afraid it would make her "slea sick." Any woman who would treat a devoted lover so scurvily deserves to be left in China. Sam Yick, one of our local celestials doesn't bank much on marriage and it is a safe bet that Sam wouldn't blow in his "stuff" in a jant to China after a wife. He says: "China boy likee funnee—no likee mallee. China boy wantee timee very much baddee. Chinee boy say go, wife say No—no gooe, no wiffee—settle China boy's funnee.

A Cowardly Plot.

"The meanest, most contemptible and most cowardly plot" says the Tweed News "that has been made known to the public in a long time past was that which has just come to light—a plot to injure the reputation of an innocent and respectable young lady. Saturday evening's mail brought to our office a letter from one of our subscribers in New York State in which was enclosed a clipping from the Watertown, N.Y., Daily Times, giving the particulars of the marriage of one of the fair daughters of the village of Enterprise, Ont., to a gentleman of the queen city. Our suspicion was aroused in consequence of the first report of the marriage appearing in a Watertown paper, while not the slightest mention of the affair was made in any of the local papers on this side of the line. Moreover the young lady in question was seen in Napanee on the day on which the marriage ceremony is said to have taken place. On receipt of the clipping a message was sent to the young lady at Erinsville and soon after a reply was received which contradicted the whole story. There are many surmises as to how the story got into print, but the most probable theory is that it was sent to the Watertown paper by some rejected, jealous lover, who in his frenzy determined to do his utmost to injure the reputation of his former sweetheart. The News has been given to understand that steps are being taken to find out who the guilty party is and that he will be called to answer before the courts for his contemptible trick."

A Dangerous Mistake

To ruin your eyes for the want of spectacles, or by the use of cheap misfitted ones, although our optician has satisfactorily fitted thousands of people, we believe there are others yet in this county who persist in the use of spectacles they know are destroying their eyes. Sceptics of this character should see the number of people young and old who come to us almost daily with blindness creeping on them, imploring at all costs for something to restore their sight. The majority of these unfortunates can trace their loss of sight to the use of trashy glasses sold to them by some incompetent vendor of spectacles. Our optician is constantly employed examining eyes, he will give yours a thoroughly scientific examination any week day or in the evening. Artificial lights.

SMITH'S JEWELLRY STORE.

The Cattle Poisoning Case.

Detective Greer, of the Ontario Investigation Department has been in this district enquiring into the recent cattle poisoning cases. In the matter of the cattle poisoned in Mr. Sagar's pasture field there does not exist any doubt but what the poison was put out by some despicable miscreant. In the case of Mr. Bowen's cattle it may be just possible that the death of the animals was due to eating weeds of a poisonous nature. Mr. Bowen had been weeding a strawberry patch and the cattle had eaten plentifully of these weeds. There had been no poison sprinkled on these plants and the authorities are in a quandry to trace the real cause of the death of the cattle. In the interest of justice and the farmers a thorough investigation should be made and the stomachs of the dead animals analyzed.

Canada's Pride.

A little over a month hence the Fall Fair will be commencing, and first and foremost will be the Industrial at Toronto, which is to be held this year from the 31st of August to the 12th of September.

Every Canadian is very properly interested in and justly proud of the success of this great Exhibition, because it brings prominently before them, as well as the outside world, the vast resources and products of our country, and the progress which is being made from year to year in its agricultural and industrial pursuits, consequently the approaching Industrial Fair is being looked forward to with increased interest and pleasurable anticipation, and many are already making arrangements to visit it. By thousands it is made the occasion of their annual holiday outing, and it is usually a very enjoyable one. There is every indication that it will this year fully equal, if not excel, its predecessors. To meet the desires of those who usually look for this kind of thing, a large number of special attractions are being provided, of a new and interesting character. The Live Stock and all other exhibits, except cut flowers and fruit, will be on the grounds from Sept. 3rd, so that the first week of the Fair will be equally as good as the second. All entries have to be made before the 8th of August. The Toronto Exhibition has now become one of the best and most popular educational and entertainment enterprises on this continent, and those who have never visited it would be surprised at its magnitude and attractiveness, being almost like a small World's Fair. Prize Lists and Entry Forms can be procured by anyone desiring them by dropping a post card to Mr. H. J. Hill, Manager, Toronto.

finally arrived and bound up the wounded member. The arm was crashed to a pulp and the poor fellow suffered terribly. Hystop has not yet reached man's estate, but appears to have all the earmarks of a hardened character. He was under the influence of liquor when the accident occurred and an examination of his right hand disclosed the fact that he had been applying croton oil to it in order to work money out of a credulous public. He was begging around town on Wednesday afternoon, but only succeeded in raising 40 cents, and this evidently went to procure whiskey. His father is dead, he says, but his step-mother lives in Brockville. He was conveyed to the Kingston General Hospital on the midnight train where his arm was amputated.

On the following Sunday the annual Flower Sunday will be held and the various churches in town will be handsomely and artistically decorated by the society. No efforts will be spared to make this display far surpass the one of last year.

A Correction.

We are requested to correct a misstatement in our report of the funeral of the late Mr. Allen Pringle in last week's issue. The choir of St. Mary Magdalene's church did not officiate on that occasion. We are informed that the choir of one parish can act officially in another only on the invitation of the clergyman in charge, and it is stated that the missionary at Selby could not possibly invite the choir of any christian church to assist at a rite conducted by a teacher who professed not to know "if there be any future life." Our informant draws attention to the very strange selection of hymns said to have been sung on the occasion so absolutely contradictory of the whole tenor of the address as reported in our columns.

Camp Le Nid.

Everything is lovely at Camp Le Nid and the proverbial goose (nothing personal) hangs suspended on high. We had the pleasure of a short stay with "the boys" in the beginning of the week and enjoyed ourselves immensely.

The camp has been greatly improved this year by the addition of a new dock and a palatial dining hall with a combination pantry in the rear. A handsome gasoline stove, the particular pride of Chief Herrington and his right bower Bryan, of cycling fame, Toronto, adds much to the comfort of camp life. Negligee attire is the style most in vogue in camp, although "Jimmie" Dey, lightning-change-artist, aspires to all styles from the killed garb of the Gael to a bathing costume. "Jimmie" Millan is not English enough to wear a Scotch bonnet but he is a "braw lad for a that." "Jimmie" is the sweet singer of Israel. In Camp Le Nid and is ably assisted by the phenomenal tenor, J. D. Ward, of the Ontario Civil Service, Toronto. When we left them they were busily engaged drilling the glee club, preparatory to taking a prominent part at a garden party at Glen Island. There are only two of the "originals" in attendance at camp this year, and they happen to be members of the legal fraternity by the way, viz: Chief Herrington and the Patrician Gould, of Baltimore. "Jimmie" Dey, who, by the way, is also a lawyer, has serious intentions of writing an ode to Herrington and Gould to the tune of "There is only a few of us left," but we sincerely hope that his tent mate, Wm. Bryan, will persuade him to forego his rash attempt and thereby avert a catastrophe. "Dan" Walsh, of the Dominion Civil Service, Norwich, is always on hand to intercept any contraband goods that the members may endeavor to smuggle into camp. Kernihan, of Toronto, sometimes called "Shorty," is chairman of the reception committee and is always on hand to welcome fresh arrivals. Thad Warner has a sneaking regard for Glen Island and spends considerable time at that charming summer resort. Messrs. Rutherford, Macdonald and Begg, of Toronto, arrived on their wheels Sunday, and T. E. Merritt and others are expected to arrive this week. "The boys" have chartered Snider's yacht for three days in the week, and what with cruising, golf playing, fishing, swimming and shooting, the time flies all too quickly.

the usual custom of county newspapers to take a week off once a year—a good old custom which we hope will never be departed from. Our subscribers will endeavor to get along without us for one week, and we will return to the task of getting out a good family journal with renewed vigor on the 17th inst. The job department will remain open for business as usual.

A Picton Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place in Picton on Monday at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. J. H. Allen, ex-Mayor of Picton and president of the John H. Allan Seed Company. The contracting parties were Mr. Alfred Bennett of the Merchants' Bank, London, and Miss Florence Fraser, only daughter of Mr. Allen M. Fraser, of Napanee. The Rev. Dr. Blackstock, of Toronto was the officiating clergyman. During the three years' residence of Miss Fraser in Picton she made hosts of friends, and the First Methodist Church will lose one of its most active and consistent workers. The happy couple are spending the week in Napanee and will leave for London on Monday.

Death of James Meagher.

We copy the following from the Belleville Sun: "After many years' successful business career one of Belleville's oldest and most respected residents passed away on Sunday night in the person of James Meagher. The deceased gentleman was born 70 years ago at Templemore, in the county of Tipperary, Ireland, and came to this country about 1846 and settled in this locality. For several years he and his father worked the farm known as the Le Loyne property, near Albert College. From there they moved to Tyendinaga and were engaged in farming for some time. Mr. Meagher while in Tyendinaga, took up the business of school teaching and for several years was highly successful in his chosen avocation and after a time became one of the pioneer shorthand teachers of Canada." The Sun goes on to say how after retiring from the teaching profession he embarked in the grocery and flour and feed business and carried on an extensive business up to a short time ago when he sold out to Mr. Charles Smith, of Campbellford. "Mr. Meagher was," says the Sun, "the first captain of No. 4 company, XV. battalion, A.L.I. at the organization of the battalion in 1863. He was a member of the town council in 1877, when the town was inaugurated a city. The deceased was widely known and highly respected, not only among business men but by all with whom he had any intercourse. In business he was very successful and the fact that he took hold of any project was the assurance that it would be carried to a successful termination. Socially and personally he was a man whom it was a pleasure to know and to many in this city he was a staunch, true friend. In politics he was always a strong supporter of the Reform party and many of the best articles appearing in the local papers up to a few years ago had his signature appended. He was a prominent member of St. Michael's church. Mr. Meagher was married 21 years ago to Miss Bessie McGurn, of Tyendinaga, who survives him." Deceased leaves three sisters, Mrs. McCormick, of Rochester; Mrs. Wm. Wilkinson and Mrs. Broadon, of Meskego, Mich.; and two brothers, John C. of Marysville, and Wm. Henry, of Napanee.

The Reason Why Some Dealers Sell Poor Dyes.

Many ladies who have been deceived by the imitation dyes so often sold by some dealers and druggists, ask the question: "Why will these merchants persist in selling us dyes that are positively worthless?"

This question is easily answered. The dealers who sell these common dyes do so for a very selfish object—big profits. They buy these crude and poisonous dyes for much less than the celebrated Diamond Dyes cost, and they are sold to the ladies at the same price; ten cents per packet. The dealers in this way make long, big profits, while the deceived consumer must suffer loss at every time of using.

Dealers know well that the Diamond Dyes are the only true and warranted colors, but the love of gain is too great to allow them to treat the public honestly.

The ladies can soon compel dealers to do what is honest and right if they insist every time upon getting the Diamond Dyes. You can always find the dealer in your town that is anxious to sell dyes that will give entire satisfaction.
